WOODSTOCK, VA., WEDNESDAY OCTOBER, 2, 1878.

POE TICAL.

Oh! mother, and sister, and wife,
While you grieve o'er the tils that you bear,
And charge all the woes of your sorrowful life
To him who should lighten your care;
Think he is only to blame,
The husband, the father, the son—
Lee the poverty injerry, sorrow, or shame,

Did you meet him with coldness and scorn 7
Did you answer his plaint with a sneer?
Though you knew that his soul was with agony torn
At the prospect so gloomy and drear?
How sad, when at the close of the day
The homeward-bound hurried floe,
To hear the poor, desolate, loiterer say—
"There's mobody waiting for me?"
